THE REVOLT AGAINST THE RE-PUBLICAN MACHINE

The Toledo Blade, the leading Republican organ of Northwestern Ohio, which refuses to support several candidates nominated on the Republican state ticket, in Friday's issue takes a fall out of those Republican members of the Ohio legislature that voted and worked to have the proposed investigation of the affairs of Cincinnati knocked out. Both of the Stark county members, Holmes and Welker, voted with the Cox machine, and now that the voters will have an opportunity to elect their successors this coming fall, good care should be exercised so that Stark county will not again be disgraced by being represented by parties that are totally unfit to honestly look after the interests of the people. The following was taken from the Toledo Blade:

On several occasions the Blade has deprecated the attitude of State Treasurer McKinnon and State Auditor Guilbert toward the legislative committee charged with the duty of examining their offices. Both men are vociferous in their claims that every cent of the public funds had been accounted for, but in spite of this they sought to place obstacles in the path of the investigators and to belittle the investigation.

We criticized this attitude on the ground that it would have a bad effect on the officials themselves, and for the further reason that it would place the Republican party of the state on the defensive. We maintained that honest officials should encourage, rather than retard, any and every investigation the people chose to institute, because it is the people's right. Besides, the result of such an investigation, if honestly conducted, must redound to the credit of the officials investigated, and of the party responsible for their selection.

The Blade is constrained to repeat this advice now to those Republican members of the legislature who have been persistently seeking to block the further investigation of Cincinnati. The methods employed to encompass the defeat of the proposition of themselves arouse suspicion. First it was thought that an effort to include Cleveland would drive the Democrats to the woods, but the challenge was accepted. Then the Republicans undertook to nullify the proposition by withholding any appropriation, but in this they were foiled. And finally, in apparent desperation, it was sought to make the appropriation unavailable for six months, thereby postponing the probe until after the election. It was as if the Republican legislators active in the discussion had publicly said: "We are afraid of the disclosures which would follow a further inquiry into the local government of Hamilton county, and hence we are opposed to it."

The Drake committee uncovered so many questionable transactions on the part of certain Cincinnati officeholders that the latter found it advisable to turn back into the treasury some aggregating over $200,000. If there has been more of that kind of work the people demand that it shall be exposed. No one can tell what a further investigation will reveal, but if we are to judge by the character of the opposition which the plan has awakened, we should say that the work cannot be begun too soon.

The attitude of the Republican leaders is inexplicable except on the theory that they know more about conditions in Cincinnati than has been published, and they are willing even to sacrifice the party in an effort to shield the wrongdoers. This is a foolhardy policy and will avail nothing. It has long been the boast of the Republican party that it is honest and intelligent enough to drive out the rascals who may seek shelter within the fold. It is no less honest and intelligent today, and if the reputed leaders are found guilty of a scheme to betray it, the punishment ultimately will fall on them.

The attitude of the bosses, as expressed by certain Republican legislators, does not reflect the sentiment of the Republican party of Ohio.

BERNARD HAS STRENGTH

Wins Out as Central Committeeman at Meeting of Hamilton County Democrats.

Cincinnati, O., May 3.—Lewie Bernard demonstrated Saturday afternoon that he was the biggest duck in the Democratic puddle in Hamilton county.

In the meeting of the Hamilton county delegation to the Democratic state convention Bernard's adherents outnumbered the Keifer-Bigelow crowd almost two to one. Typical of the strength of Bernard in the organization was the vote on his own candidacy for state central committee men in the first district. Theodore Bracken was the candidate of the opposition. The vote was 24 to 14, with Lewie getting the 24.

T. J. Noctor offered a resolution endorsing Bryan which, by a big majority, was laid on the table.

Wooster—Mrs. Mary E. Leiner, 78, died after four years illness.

Byrds—Fire destroyed seven buildings causing loss of $25,000.

BRIDGE CO. WILL FIGHT GIRL'S CASE

Lima, O., May 3.—"They arrested me because I would not tell them something I did not know about," was the statement made today by Miss Mary McMurray, secretary of the Canton Bridge Co., who was arrested here on an indictment charging perjury. She gave bond.

Miss McMurray, when informed of the indictment, broke down and cried. Prosecutor Welby has been after her for nearly two years seeking evidence against the bridge company. She was once before served with a subpoena, but she received the legal paper on the day of her mother's funeral and was excused. Her counsel claims Miss McMurray was asked to identify letters said to have been written by her five or six years ago. The stenographer admitted it was possible she had written them, but refused to identify them positively as correspondence between her company and others of the alleged bridge trust. The Canton Bridge Co. wired counsel to fight this case through every court of the state.

Miss McMurray is 40, and for 12 years has been private clerk in the home offices of the Canton Bridge Co.

JUDGE ROCKWELL SEEKS NO OFFICE

Ravenna, O., May 3.—Democrats in this section are much gratified by the movement to give Judge David L. Rockwell, of Ravenna, a place on the state ticket. Judge Rockwell is not at all certain that he cares for the honor. He said today:

"I am not seeking any place on the state ticket. Should the Democrats of Ohio desire me to consent to the use of my name in the coming convention, I might do so, but do not say that I would."

"Many leading Democrats in Portage county say they would prefer I serve the people here another term as probate judge, assuring me of my reelection should I again be nominated. Many Republican leaders express similar sentiments."

"I cannot say at this time what I shall do or what is best for me to do. I shall go to Columbus, Monday, and shall then decide on a course of action."

"I appreciate the movement in my behalf."

Judge Rockwell is receiving letters from the counties over the state urging him to announce himself for Secretary of State. Others are urging him to come out for State Treasurer, and Democrats here take more kindly to the latter proposition.

LARGE CLASS

Of Children Take First Communion at St. John's Catholic Church.

Seventy-three children connected with St. John's Catholic church took a very important step in their spiritual lives Sunday, when they took their first communion at the hands of Rev. P. J. McGuire, who presided at most of their christenings and has watched their daily lives from that day to the present time. This class was composed of 43 boys and 30 girls and they are getting in readiness for the day of their confirmation. The mass at the service was read by Rev. Father Timothy Dunn, the assistant pastor of the church, while the rites of communion came from the hands of the pastor himself. The boys were neatly attired in black, while the little girls were robed in that emblem of purity, pure white, with wreaths and garlands in their hair.

Carroll County Woman Wants Divorce

Carrollton, May 3.—Mrs. Rosa Stoller, of Pekin, has entered suit for divorce and alimony against her husband, Gottlieb Stoller. They were married at Canton about 18 years ago and are the parents of two children, a son, Caleb, aged 17, and a daughter, Rosa, aged 16. She charges him with cruelty, says he treated her worse than a dog, refused to buy her clothes and she worked for two years in the Minerva pottery. While employed there she became poisoned from chemicals and became seriously ill and she lay in bed several days without medical aid, her husband refusing to summon a physician until neighbors forced him to do so. She claims he is worth about $5000.

William Lavin, who was sent to the workhouse Friday afternoon for stealing two fish belonging to County Commissioner James C. Burnheimer, was released from the institution on Saturday. His fine and costs having been paid. Mr. Lavin felt very badly over the affair, as the taking of the fish was only a joke. Burnheimer has played many jokes of a similar nature, but became angry when the tables were turned upon him.

FRANKLIN

In the convention will be attacked on the grounds that the state committee call was violated in the selection of the delegation. The whole affair now seems certain to be fully aired on the floor of the convention, as well as before the credentials committee.

W. L. Finley, secretary of the state executive committee, will be attacked in the Hardin county contest, which is bitter in the extreme. Affidavits already have been made that Finley and W. W. Durbin, candidate for auditor, secured the Hardin county delegation by fraudulent methods. The county convention tallies and a number of delegates have sworn that the records were changed on a vote as to whether or not Durbin, as a candidate for a place on the state ticket, should be permitted to pick the delegation.

J. E. Marchard reached Columbus today with the papers, including the affidavits sworn to before Mayor Cook of Kenton, and signed by him. Marchard evaded an attempt to place him under arrest for the purpose, it is charged, of taking away the affidavits. Finley, he said, was not a delegate in the county convention, yet he took an active part in the proceedings. If they meet defeat before the credentials committee the men fighting Finley and Durbin will take the contest before the convention.

One of the important contests of the convention will be thrashed out before the committee on rules and order of business, and then on the floor of the convention, whatever the report of the committee.

Finley and other leaders, at a conference last night, renewed their desire that the convention shall not endorse a candidate for the United States senate.

Mayor Johnson and many other influential leaders will fight to the last ditch for an indorsement. Former Governor James E. Campbell is shoulder to shoulder with Mayor Johnson on this proposition. The entire convention program has been changed from the customary procedure. The district meetings will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. At 4 o'clock the convention committees selected at the district meetings will get together and the fight for control will be on. The new state central committee may meet at 4 o'clock and plunge into the question of organization.

The convention proper will meet at 7:30 o'clock and listen to the speech of Temporary Chairman Edmund A. Moore, of Youngstown. Then will come the reports of the committees and the fight will be fairly launched before the convention. In
